

Young Nerds of Color

FSU Planetarium, O'Connor Hall

October 17 through 21

Hiding in plain sight in the science labs, grappling over civilization's greatest challenges, are Young Nerds of Color. Some speak with the poetry of wise sages. Others subvert the establishment with renegade ways. Finally, there are rock stars whose ideas flow like jazz improvisation. All change the world like a bolt of lightning illuminating the night sky. Playwright Melinda Lopez weaves together over 60 interviews with scientists from the most underrepresented backgrounds – amplifying the rich harmonies, breaking down boundaries, and showing us what is possible.

Screenings are FREE for all members of the FSU community during MA STEM Week: October 17-21.

Screening times are available at <https://cm-center.org/event/ynoc>

FSU Faculty, Staff, and Student Clubs/Organizations:

Book a screening for your group any time by filling out this form

McAuliffe
Center
Integrated Science Learning

Framingham
State University